

A close-up photograph of a purple thistle flower. The flower has many thin, spiky petals that radiate from a central point. A small, dark insect is visible on one of the petals near the top center. The background is a blurred green, suggesting foliage.

Deutronomy 22:08 When thou buildest a new house, then thou shalt make a battlement for thy roof, that thou bring not blood upon thine house, if any man fall from thence.