the secret places doth he murder
the innocent: his eyes are privily set against the poor.
